Back to Indulgence

By @everylittlecrumb

Step into a world where flavour reigns, pleasure is unapologetic, and nostalgia gets a modern glow-up. This is your invitation to slow down, savor, and sink into the kind of indulgence that lingers; It is rich in taste, culture, and memory. Because sometimes, going back is the most delicious way forward.

There's something wildly comforting about a café that doesn't have you swap pleasure for restraint, somewhere that's worth those few extra calorie counts, and where you in fact count memories with every bite.

I walked into Camel Club on a breezy Thursday afternoon, not entirely sure what to expect. I'd heard whispers about this new café: "desserts, food and drinks inspired by comfort classics fused with Arabian flavours", "The dessert tins 'Club Cakes' are iconic", and "You'll want to move in." (Spoiler: All true.)

Once inside, it's like stepping into a place that feels like it's always been a part of your life. The warmly lit interior doesn't scream for attention yet feels special; with its earthy tones, wooden panels, rich tapestry and viby art, it takes you back to somewhere "retro-esque" and very relatable.

And then... the menu!
It's a celebration of comfort classics, the kind of dishes that make you pause and smile before your first bite. Familiar flavours are reimagined with just the right amount of flair. Nothing fussy, nothing trying too hard, just food that feels like home, only cooler. Whether you're sharing bites or sinking into a solo moment of indulgence, each dish carries a warmth that stays with you. But, it was the dessert and drinks selection that deserves a special mention! Specifically Coco Dunes, layered in a vintage-chic tin; it sealed the deal... Imagine a decadent, moist chocolate cake with hazelnut crunch, vanilla crème and a cloud of whipped hazelnut namelaka (a delicate creamy ganache). It's rich, dreamy, and unapologetically indulgent; Like a nostalgic memory dressed in its coolest outfit. The kind of dessert that doesn't just hit the sweet spot, it hugs your entire soul. And yes, I took the tin home.

At Camel Club Café, you're not just eating something sweet or drinking coffee; you're enjoying, you're laughing, connecting, reminiscing, and indulging without restraint. It's not performative, it's joyful, familiar and bold.

So yes, Camel Club is the newest coffee shop in town, but it already feels timeless. A place that sums up everything we've been longing for: Back to indulgence. Back to connection. Back to flavours. Back to enjoyment. Back to it all. See you there... I'll be the one ordering Coco Dunes, again!
